Bisohp Hopkin's Account of Affairs In The South [From the Church Journal, Nov. 30.]

The Presiding Bishop's tour to Louisiana and Kentucky was of more than common im portance in many points of view. It was the he invites an examination of his goods, and first time that any Presiding Bishop had been requested to travel to such great distance in requested to travel to such great distance in requested in the best manner and on the lowest of the last surviving executor of the complainant, this cause is revived in the name of Robert 1. the personal performance of his duty as Conse- terms. crator; and in both cases there was an earnest request for his presence both from the bishop elect and from the standing committee of the diocese. Then, again, it was the first visit of ers, and they may be assured that what he sells any of our bishops, since the war, to any of the them will be of the best materials and of the Gulf dioceses, and might thus be well regarded | best manufacture. He will warrant whatever as the visible realization of the restored union he sells. It will be his object to secure patronof the Church. It was received with the most age by constant and personal attention to his generous warmth, and with an overflowing establishment. generous warmth, and with an overflowing cordiality which touched him deeply, but the Manufactory, willing to show by his efforts that details of which it would hardly be in good the patronage he asks, will redound to the adtaste to spread before the public. Every- vantage of those who buy, as well as of him who where churchmen seem disposed to thank God | sells, and that the citizens of Alexandria and and take courage, and are awake to the glorious its vicinity, need not go elsewhere to purchase opportunity of the Church now so visible to all sides.

The one great drawback is the want of means and men. The failure of both the corn and cotton crops through large regions of the South make the pecuniary prostration deeper than ever. Wide fields of blighted corn and stunted and dried-up coston met the eye on every side. Here and there were rains of the war-low brick pillars on which extensive buildings once rested, which have left only a few charred fragments behind. Jackson, Mississippi, is partly yet a mass of ruins, and the church site stands empty of all but grass and the old rusty iron turnace standing out alone in the weather. We heard not a disloyal word from a white man, and not a disrespectful word from a colored man, during the whole trip; and the city of New Orleans is so quite and orderly that ladies of the highest standing walk alone in the streets after dark without escort. But everywhere the greatest exertious are being made to repair the ravages of war, and restore the interrupted industries of peace; and every passing day helps the good work. We earnestly beg all our friends every where, to respond, with all the ability in their power to every appeal from the South and the Southwest, and that County Court of Alexandria county, in the all the ability in their power to every appeal not for spiritual needs only.
